Experienced leaders are an integral part of any crew. Squad Leaders need to exhibit their willingness to direct and learn. This position is a physical and mental challenge that requires the Squad Boss to be the important link between the crew and overhead. The Squad Leader should be well versed in fire behavior and fire equipment as well as versed in hazard fuels reduction in the wildland/urban interface. The ability to troubleshoot and repair equipment, and deal with personnel issues is an essential part of the 'Squadies' daily duties with an emphasis on them being able to carry out the projects at hand independently and efficiently. When not involved in fuels reduction projects, the Squad Leader at times may be required to work as a member of a fire crew on fire assignments within the Douglas County (CO) area and other specified duties for the fire department.
